Government ramps up sale of 5-kg LPG cylinders, assures no fuel shortage

New Delhi: Government has stepped up sale of small 5-kg LPG cylinders which is available across-the-counter at LPG distributorships on showing valid ID proofs. Ministry of Petroleum & Natural Gas has said that about 6.6 lakh bottles 5-kg LPG cylinders have been sold since March 23 after government ramped up supplies to meet demand.

Unlike the subsidised domestic 14.2-kg cylinders, 5-kg cylinders are priced at market rates and do not require any address proof for procurement from a nearby LPG distributorship. The ministry said there are no reports of shortages at LPG distributor points, with more than 51 lakh domestic cylinders delivered on April 4 and online bookings accounting for 95 per cent of total demand. Government has said that it is taking comprehensive measures to ensure uninterrupted fuel supply, safeguard maritime operations, and assist Indian nationals amid the evolving situation in West Asia. Ministry of Petroleum & Natural Gas emphasised that there is no shortage of petrol, diesel or LPG in the country and urged citizens to avoid panic buying. People have been advised to rely on digital platforms for LPG bookings and refrain from unnecessary visits to distributors.

Government has also accelerated the expansion of piped natural gas (PNG) connections, with around 3.6 lakh households already connected and over 3.9 lakh new registrations recorded since March. Citizens have been encouraged to adopt alternative cooking options such as PNG, electric cooktops, and induction systems to reduce pressure on LPG demand.

On the supply side, refineries are operating at high capacity with adequate crude reserves, and domestic LPG production has been ramped up. Additional kerosene allocations have also been made to states to support essential needs.

Authorities highlighted strict monitoring and enforcement measures to curb hoarding and black marketing. More than 50 thousand LPG cylinders have been seized since March, over 1,400 show-cause notices issued, and 36 distributorships suspended for violations. States and Union Territories have been directed to conduct daily inspections, issue regular advisories, and counter misinformation through coordinated communication.

Air India suspends flights to Israel till May 31 amid West Asia conflict

New Delhi: Amid the ongoing war in West Asia, Air India has suspended its flights to Israel. An Air India official said that the airline has suspended flights on the New Delhi-Tel Aviv route till May 31. Most of the leading airlines have suspended their operations on the Tel Aviv route, with only Israeli carriers operating under severe restrictions.

The suspension of flights has caused major worries among more than 40 thousand Indians living in Israel who wish to travel to India for personal or professional reasons, or even to escape the escalating tensions in the region. The embassy has also maintained regular contact with the community during the period, opening a 24x7 emergency line and also launching a massive registration drive. Ambassador J P Singh and the embassy team on Saturday held virtual discussion with Indian workers and students across Israel to listen to their concerns, assuring them of "constant support during the ongoing crisis, and beyond".

EAM Dr S Jaishankar discusses West Asia situation with leaders of Iran, UAE and Qatar

New Delhi: External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar spoke to Iranian Foreign Minister Abbas Araghchi and Qatari Prime Minister Sheikh Mohammed bin Abdulrahman bin Jassim Al Thani yesterday. They discussed the present situation in the West Asia conflict. Dr Jaishankar also held a phone conversation with UAE Foreign Minister Sheikh Abdullah bin Zayed Al Nahyan. West Asia has been a major source of India's energy procurement.

Delhi: 17-year-old stabbed to death in Jahangir Puri

New Delhi: A 17-year-old boy was stabbed to death in Delhi's Jahangir Puri area after a violent altercation stemming from a previous dispute. He was brought to Babu Jagjivan Ram Memorial Hospital (BJRM) with multiple stab injuries, where the doctors declared him dead.

According to the police, the incident took place on Sunday at around 6 pm at the Ramlila Maidan in Jahangir Puri.

The deceased's brother, Hakeem, who was also an eyewitness to the murder, alleged that Dilshad, Irfan, Imran, and Rizbul jointly attacked his brother (the deceased) with sharp-edged weapons.

Preliminary investigation suggests that the incident stemmed from a long-standing dispute between the two families.

It is reported that tensions escalated following personal relationship issues and a dispute during Eid, which led the accused persons to carry out the deadly attack.

Police have registered a case and initiated an investigation. All the accused are currently absconding, and multiple teams have been formed to trace and apprehend them.

The police have appealed to the public to maintain peace and not pay attention to rumours.

An investigation is underway, and further details are awaited.

Earlier on March 28, a 17-year old minor was killed while another suffered injuries after being stabbed by an individual during a wedding procession in which two groups of boys started quarrelling on some issue at around 11:15 pm in Delhi's Rani Bagh.

A friend of the deceased said, "Our friend had attended a wedding. While he was there, a scuffle broke out among some children. He must have stepped in to intervene. An older individual present there saw the commotion, perhaps thinking he was hitting the children. They did not actually know whether he was hitting anyone or not. However, when he stepped into the middle of the altercation to intervene, that individual stabbed him with a knife. There were two of our friends who were stabbed. One of our friends has passed away, and the other is currently hospitalised," he said.

Tamil Nadu. He stated that his priority would be to ensure the state is not overlooked by the central government. "I am a member from Tamil Nadu, and my priority will be to ensure that Tamil Nadu is not sidelined by the Central Government," he said.

The special Parliamentary session to pass the Women's Reservation Amendment Bill will convene from April 16. The bill was passed by Parliament in 2023. The base for delimitation had originally been set at the 2011 census. The Delimitation Act will be amended accordingly. The Government is currently building consensus as this legislation will need 2/3rd majority to pass this legislation, making it crucial to secure support from opposition parties.

Rengali Shyam Metalics Unit Sealed Over Pollution Violations; Questions Over Selective Action

Sambalpur-06/04(DMS) : In a significant move, authorities have sealed the Rengali-based unit of Shyam Metalics and Energy Limited following directives from the Central Pollution Control Board (CPCB), after long-standing allegations of environmental violations.

The company, which has been facing controversy for nearly 20 years, had earlier received at least six notices for failing to curb pollution. A recent inspection by a central team reportedly found 26 violations of environmental norms, prompting the CPCB to order closure of the plant from March 30. Acting on these directions, the administration sealed the unit, marking a major enforcement action. However, the company's office reportedly remains open, raising concerns about incomplete implementation of the closure order. The development has also led to public outrage, with locals demanding similar action against other polluting industries operating in Sambalpur and nearby Jharsuguda district.

The issue has taken a political turn, with discussions suggesting that the action came in the backdrop of tensions between the state government and a central political leader. Critics argue that despite years of violations under successive governments, strict action was delayed and only initiated recently.

Residents have long alleged that emissions and waste from the plant caused serious air and water pollution, adversely affecting public health and the environment. The company had previously been fined approximately ₹199.98 crore for illegal ash dumping, a penalty that reportedly remains unpaid.

Further allegations include unauthorized occupation of land near the Hirakud reservoir and the creation of illegal ash dumps without proper clearance. Authorities had also been instructed to cut power supply and ensure compliance, but delays in enforcement had drawn criticism from various quarters.

The incident has intensified calls for stricter and uniform action against all industries violating environmental norms in the region.

Bhubaneswar, 06 April (H.S.): Odisha Chief Minister Mohan Charan Majhi on Monday extended greetings to party workers, supporters, and the public on the occasion of the 47th Foundation Day of the Bharatiya Janata Party.

In a message shared on social media, the Chief Minister congratulated the dedicated party workers, supporters, and citizens who have placed their trust in the party. He described the BJP as not merely a political organization but a living ideology rooted in the sacrifice, ideals, and values of great leaders such as Deendayal Upadhyaya, Syama Prasad Mukherjee, and Atal Bihari Vajpayee.

Majhi said the nationalist family, inspired by the mantra of "Nation First," has grown into a vast banyan tree fulfilling the hopes and aspirations of millions of Indians.

He further stated that the BJP's journey of development is not merely about attaining power but represents a continuous flow of values and service. The party's commitment to the vision of

"Antyodaya to Rashtrudaya," he said, aims to ensure that the benefits of development reach the last person in society.

The Chief Minister added that the new era of development being witnessed in Odisha today is the result of the tireless efforts and organizational unity of the party's dedicated workers. Calling upon party members to renew their commitment, Majhi urged them to contribute to the mission of building a "Prosperous Odisha" and a "Developed India" under the visionary leadership of Prime Minister Narendra Modi.

63rd National Maritime Day and Merchant Navy Week celebrated in Paradip

Paradeep: Observed every year on April 5, National Maritime Day marks India's rich maritime legacy and acknowledges the relentless efforts of mariners, shipping professionals, and stakeholders who power global trade and connectivity. The occasion also serves as a reminder of India's aspirations to emerge as a leading maritime nation through innovation, sustainability, and robust port-led development.

Similarly, the 63rd National Maritime Day and Merchant Navy Week were celebrated with great pomp and show at the Odisha Maritime Academy premises in Paradip on Saturday. All the cadets of Paradip Maritime Academy, along with the officers of the Navy, Paradip Port and the Maritime Department, were present to remember that historic day in 1919. The Indian ship SS Loyalty, which asserted its sovereignty over the waterways of the entire world community and resisted the British expansion of its dominance, set sail for the first time in 1919 from Mumbai to London. This marked India's presence on the seas and also secured its rights over the maritime routes of countries all over the world. National Maritime Day is celebrated in India every year on April 5 to commemorate this maiden voyage of SS Loyalty. Since 1964, this day has been recognized for the contribution of the maritime industry to the Indian economy and has been honoring sailors. In this regard, the Forward Union celebrated the 63rd Maritime Day for the first time at the Maritime Academy complex in Paradip, remembering the history of those 63 years and the way India asserted its rights on the waterways today, which has benefited an economic and commercial perspective. On this occasion, an essay competition was organized for students of various schools and colleges of the Paradip area on the occasion of National Maritime Day. The officials present said that this will make the children aware of maritime history and will create interest among the children to join the maritime sector in the coming days.

On the occasion, Senior Marine Engineer Manoj Kumar Mahant and MMD Surveyor Purnna Chandra Majhi were the chief guests in the program, while Paradip Port Authority Deputy Conservator Capt. Alekh Chandra Sahu was the guest of honor and Odisha Maritime Academy principal Manas Ranjan Behura was present as the guest and highlighted the celebration of Maritime Day and Merchant Navy Week and appreciated the organizers for organizing such program. All these programs were successfully conducted by FSUI branch representatives Sushant Kumar Swain and Himanshu Parida.

Comprehensive Exploration of Odisha

It is said, "Brevity is the soul of wit." In that sense, ace journalist Bhaskar Parichha's book, Odisha - 500 Years of Turmoil, Mayhem and Subjugation, has already created ripples in the intellectual domain and in the minds of history-loving people. The high priest of history, E. H. Carr, in his magnum opus writes, "History would not be worth writing or reading if it has no meaning." Parichha's presentation of 500 years of Odisha's history is a capsule that contains all the crucial challenges and possibilities, while seeking meaning and purpose.

This book is a procession of facts and events, governed by inexorable laws. It is the result of objective analysis, documenting the most monumental challenges Odisha has confronted, written in lucid English, in an impassioned yet impartial manner, with remarkable objectivity. Things deeply embedded in Odishan culture—the valour of the warrior class and a liberal intellectual tradition—permeate the narrative in an impressive manner throughout the book, exhibiting the craftsmanship of the writer.

The cover of the book is unique, drawn from Odishan folklore. The structure of the book is well organised; it is not a history textbook but reads like a lyrical love story. The format, in that sense, is quite revolutionary, with a chronological arrangement of history that speaks and enthral. Citings from the writings of Abu Fazal, Arnold Toynbee, and Barrister Madh usudan Das make it compelling reading.

In his Foreword, noted literary critic and bureaucrat Haraprasad Das writes, "Odisha, for many, is either a glorious mystery that faded into civilizational history or an aspirational model of cultural osmosis that blends the North-South Vindhyan divide into a living whole." That is the marvel of this history book—it not only chronicles, but enchants.

The narrative revolves around the concept of Odisha's spiritual journey, politics, society, and economics. Parichha has beautifully captured the evolving politics through a quest for Odia identity, while striving to preserve rich traditions and welcoming modernity in an ever-changing cultural landscape. Odisha's historical maritime trade boasts a great legacy and a vibrant culture across the Bay of Bengal and far beyond India's boundaries into Southeast Asia. There have been major shifts, of course, but the way Parichha chronicles them is rhythmic.

The ups and downs—from the Na'Anka famine, a sad reminder of the apathetic and callous attitude of the British Empire resulting in colossal loss of lives, to the downturn after MukundaDev—are portrayed with depth and sensitivity. Equally striking are the triumphs of KapilendraDev, who envisioned an empire rooted in Odisha's culture. Nevertheless, the book delves into the aggression of the Marathas, the Afghan invasion, the Muslim period, and the tumultuous British era, weaving this intricate history with coherence and depth.

The Paika Rebellion, the Nilgiri movement, the Khurda Rebellion of 1804, and the integration of princely states under the stewardship of the first Chief Minister, Dr. Harekrishna Mahatab—including the Quit India Movement and the iconic guerrilla warfare led by Veer Surendra Sai during the First War of Independence—are presented as living history, forming the flashpoint of the book.

After India became independent, Odisha marches on through trials and tribulations, yet never feels defeated. On the cusp of Independence, democracy finds its footing—with a farmer-first policy and an industrialising Odisha—continually battling natural calamities like floods and cyclones, yet standing like a solid rock after every disaster. What Parichha writes is the beauty of the resilience of the people of Odisha, and the spiritual leadership of Lord Jagannath, who, in legend, moves to the battlefield to fight for his sevak king.

The political landscape, once unstable after Independence, has now stabilised, and a rising Odisha is carving a niche for itself nationally and internationally, as Parichha highlights. The changes in occupational structure, the rise of soft power, modern farming practices, and industrial turnaround together narrate a story aligned with national goals of economic and inclusive growth.

The book is about a rising star beyond the horizon, in the firmament of history—immensely readable and scrupulously enjoyable. Blending rigorous scholarship with an engaging narrative, it is a comprehensive exploration of Odisha over the last five hundred years.

The analysis is insightful, the result of hard labor and scholarship, producing an erudite yet refreshingly accessible book that celebrates history as an act of curiosity, argument, and critical inquiry. Highly recommended.

Lack of Experts: How to Get Kids Ready for AI

Dr. Vijay Garg

Criterion intelligence in the modern era is rapidly changing every sector including education, health, agriculture, industry and employment. But with this change comes a bigger challenge—the cost of money. When technology advances, human resources are not developed at the same speed. The biggest question in SE: Are we preparing our children for an AI future? Why the shortage of experts?

AI is a high-level field that requires knowledge—understanding of math, logic, data, and programming. But there is a growing lack of experts for several reasons:

the still-old curriculum in schools. The paucity of practical and experiential learning. Lack of equal access to technology. Lack of teacher training. The need to prepare children for AI. Many jobs in the future will be related to AI. So kids will have to learn not only book knowledge, but also thinking and problem-solving skills. (Critical Thinking) (creativity) (digital literacy). (adapting to change) The Role of Schools. Schools have to make changes in their education system:

Covering topics such as AI, coding and data science. Practical Education. Not just theory, but learning through projects and experiences. Teacher training. Making teachers aware of new technology. The role of parents. Parents also play a vital role in preparing children for AI: Making children aware of technology, motivating them to ask questions and learn new. Maintaining a balance of screen time, responsibility of government and society. Strengthening the digital infrastructure. equal educational opportunities in rural and urban areas. Skills development programmes for young people. The Importance of Human Values. Human values are no less important in the age of AI.

Rooted in Specifics of Kolkata

Bhaskar Parichha

No. 1 Akashganga Lane: The First Novel about the Gig Workers of Kolkata by Ashoke Mukhopadhyay, translated with sensitivity and nuance by Zenith Roy, is a strikingly contemporary novel that brings into sharp focus the precarious lives of urban gig workers. Set against the pulsating yet indifferent backdrop of Kolkata, the novel explores a world that is at once hyper-connected and profoundly isolating.

At the heart of the narrative is Sriman, a food delivery worker whose life is defined by anonymity and transience. He delivers meals to strangers, navigating the city's labyrinthine streets, yet remains invisible within the very system he sustains. Mukhopadhyay captures this paradox with quiet precision: Sriman's labour is essential, but his existence is expendable. The gig economy, as portrayed in the novel, demands efficiency, obedience, and silence—qualities that gradually erode individuality and agency.

Equally compelling is the character of Mrittika Sen, a bike taxi driver whose experiences foreground the gendered dimensions of gig work. Through her, the novel examines the additional vulnerabilities faced by women in an already unstable ecosystem. The constant threat of being "logged out"—a chillingly impersonal metaphor for economic erasure—hangs over her life. Mukhopadhyay does not sensationalize her struggles; instead, he presents them with restraint, allowing their quiet intensity to resonate.

What elevates No. 1 Akashganga Lane beyond a social-realist narrative is its imaginative and philosophical layer. The titular Akashganga—a century-old house—serves as a refuge, both literal and symbolic. Within its walls resides Bishan Basu, a figure who introduces Sriman, Mrittika, and others to the stars. This shift from the immediacy of urban struggle to the vastness of the cosmos is one of the novel's most poignant devices. It offers a counterpoint to the claustrophobia of gig work, suggesting that even in the most constrained lives, there exists a yearning for transcendence.

The recurring motif of the stars and the speculative question—whether these workers might one day need another planet to call home—imbues the narrative with a subtle dystopian edge. It reflects not only ecological anxieties but also a deeper sense of displacement. The idea that gig workers might carry their labour into another world is both darkly humorous and profoundly unsettling, underscoring the inescapability of systemic exploitation.

Mukhopadhyay's prose, as rendered in English by Roy, is measured and evocative. The translation deserves particular commendation for retaining the cultural texture of the original while ensuring readability for a wider audience. Kolkata itself emerges as a character—its rhythms, inequalities, and fleeting solidarities shaping the lives of those who inhabit it. The author's background in documenting the city's social history is evident in the authenticity of detail and atmosphere.

The novel also succeeds in capturing the fragile solidarities that emerge among gig workers. Friendships, though often transient, provide moments of warmth and resistance. The shared experiences of precarity create a sense of community, however fleeting. Akashganga becomes a space where these fragmented lives intersect, offering not solutions but solace.

No. 1 Akashganga Lane is a timely and thought-provoking novel that captures the human cost of the gig economy with empathy and insight. Through its blend of social realism and philosophical reflection, it offers a nuanced portrait of contemporary urban life.

Ashoke Mukhopadhyay has crafted a narrative that is both rooted in the specifics of Kolkata and resonant with global relevance, while Zenith Roy ensures that its voice travels beyond linguistic boundaries. The result is a work that lingers, prompting readers to look more closely at the invisible lives that sustain modern cities.

Alone in a Crowd: The Truth About Modern Friendships

Dr Vijay Garg

In today's hyper-connected world, friendship has taken on a new form—one that is shaped by screens, notifications, and digital interactions. We are more "connected" than ever before, with hundreds or even thousands of online contacts just a click away. Yet, paradoxically, many people feel more isolated and emotionally distant than ever. This contradiction defines the reality of modern friendship: connected, yet alone.

The rise of social media platforms has revolutionized how friendships are formed and maintained. Distance is no longer a barrier; people can stay in touch across continents in real time. Old schoolmates reconnect, long-lost relatives find each other, and new friendships blossom in virtual communities. On the surface, it appears that human connection has reached unprecedented levels.

However, beneath this digital closeness lies a deeper emotional gap. Online interactions often lack the depth and authenticity of face-to-face communication. A "like," a quick comment, or a short message cannot fully replace the warmth of a genuine conversation, the comfort of shared silence, or the empathy conveyed through a simple touch. As a result, relationships may become shallow, sustained more by habit than by true emotional bonding. Another challenge is the illusion of companionship. Social media creates a curated version of reality, where people present only their happiest moments. This can lead to unrealistic comparisons and feelings of inadequacy. Seeing others constantly surrounded by friends and joy can make individuals feel lonelier, even when they are not. The presence of many connections does not necessarily translate into meaningful friendships.

Moreover, the quality of time spent together has diminished. Even when friends meet in person, they are often distracted by their devices. Conversations are interrupted by notifications, and attention is divided between the real and the virtual world. This gradual erosion of presence weakens the foundation of genuine relationships.

Modern lifestyles also play a role. Busy schedules, career pressures, and geographical mobility leave little time for nurturing friendships. As people prioritize professional success, relationships sometimes take a backseat. Over time, this leads to emotional distance, even among close friends. Yet, it would be unfair to view technology as entirely negative. It has also enabled support networks, especially for those who feel isolated in their immediate surroundings. Online communities can offer a sense of belonging, encouragement, and understanding. The key lies not in rejecting technology but in using it mindfully.

To bridge the gap between connection and loneliness, individuals must consciously invest in meaningful relationships. This means prioritizing quality over quantity—fewer but deeper friendships rather than a large network of superficial ones. It involves being present, listening actively, and making time for real conversations. Small efforts, such as meeting regularly, sharing experiences, and expressing genuine care, can strengthen bonds significantly.

In conclusion, modern friendship exists in a complex space where digital connection coexists with emotional isolation. While technology has brought people closer in terms of communication, it has also distanced them in terms of true intimacy. The challenge of our time is to balance these two realities—to remain connected without losing the essence of what it truly means to be a friend.

"Moon's Secret Reservoirs Power the Next Space Journey"

Dr Vijay Garg

For decades, the Moon was considered a barren and dry world. But recent scientific discoveries have dramatically changed this perception. The detection of water on the lunar surface has not only reshaped our understanding of Earth's closest neighbor but has also reignited global interest in returning humans to the Moon.

The presence of water on the Moon was first strongly confirmed through missions like Chandrayaan-1 and later observations by NASA. Scientists found that water exists in multiple forms—frozen as ice in permanently shadowed craters near the poles and even as molecules trapped in sunlit soil. This discovery challenged the long-held belief that the Moon was completely dry.

More recently, space agencies have intensified efforts to locate and map these water deposits. Missions such as NASA's Lunar Trailblazer and upcoming rover-based explorations aim to identify where water is concentrated and how it behaves on the lunar surface. These efforts are not just scientific—they are strategic.

Water is the key to sustainable space exploration. It can be used for drinking, producing breathable oxygen, and even creating rocket fuel by splitting it into hydrogen and oxygen. This means future astronauts may not need to carry all essential resources from Earth, significantly reducing mission costs and complexity.

The Moon's south pole has emerged as a particularly important region. Deep craters there remain in permanent shadow, preserving ice deposits that may have existed for billions of years. These frozen reserves could support long-term human presence and serve as refueling stations for missions to Mars and beyond.

Beyond practical uses, the discovery of lunar water also holds scientific significance. Studying it can provide clues about the origins of water on Earth and the history of the solar system. Scientists believe lunar water may have come from comet impacts or chemical reactions involving solar wind particles.

As a result, the Moon is no longer just a destination of past glory—it is becoming a gateway to the future. International collaborations, including efforts by NASA, ISRO, and JAXA, highlight a shared vision of building a sustained human presence on the Moon.

In conclusion, the discovery of water has transformed the Moon from a lifeless satellite into a promising hub for exploration and innovation. It is this vital resource that is fueling humanity's return to the lunar surface—this time, not just to visit, but to stay.

Beyond Fluency: Rethinking Spoken English Education

Dr Vijay Garg

Teaching a language requires an understanding of how learners acquire language, how errors can be addressed, and how communicative competence can be developed

A classroom full of learners stands with their hands over their hearts, repeating in unison: "From today, I will speak only in English. I can speak in English." The exercise resembles a pledge—solemn, collective, and hopeful. For many, it marks the start of a journey toward confidence and self-improvement. Yet, one cannot help but wonder: can fluency in a language truly be achieved through such declarations?

This scene is not unusual. With the onset of the vacation season, several spoken English centres appear across towns and cities, offering attractive packages and persuasive promises. Advertisements assure learners that fluency can be attained within two to three months. Some even guarantee a refund if the goal is not achieved. For students preparing for higher studies or job interviews or looking for social mobility, such claims are difficult to resist since English has become a global necessity and the pressure to acquire it quickly is immense. However, beneath these assurances, lies a more complex reality about how languages are actually learned.

In many centres, training is built around predictable conversational patterns. Learners are taught to introduce themselves, describe their hobbies and discuss their ambitions, and respond to routine questions. These are useful starting points but the method often relies heavily on memorisation. Students internalise fixed sentences and reproduce them with confidence, creating the impression of fluency in controlled environments.

Thinking in English Yet, language is not a set of ready-made expressions to be recalled on demand. It is a system that must be actively constructed in the mind. The first step in communication occurs in thought, where ideas take shape before being articulated. When learners rely primarily on memorised phrases, they struggle in unfamiliar situations that require spontaneous expression.

The reliance on translation further complicates this process. In many classrooms, concepts are explained in the regional language and then translated into English. While this may make learning appear easier, it prevents learners from thinking directly in English. Instead, they become dependent on a mental translation process, which slows communication and restricts originality. True fluency emerges only when the language becomes a medium of thought rather than a tool of conversion.

A striking feature of some spoken English programmes is the neglect of essential components of language learning. Grammar, for instance, is often dismissed as unnecessary with the argument that spoken English requires only practice. While an excessive focus on rules can indeed hinder fluency, the absence of grammatical awareness leaves learners without the structural framework needed to form coherent and accurate sentences.

Pronunciation is another overlooked area. Few centres offer systematic training in phonetics, which is crucial to develop clarity and intelligibility. Without this guidance, learners rely on approximations influenced by their first language, leading to persistent errors that can affect academic and personal communication in academic and professional settings.

Equally important is vocabulary. Effective communication depends not merely on confidence but on the availability of words to express thought. Many students, including those educated in English-medium institutions, struggle with limited vocabulary. This restricts their ability to think and articulate ideas in English. Vocabulary building is a gradual process that requires sustained exposure to reading, listening, and meaningful interaction. It cannot be achieved through short-term courses alone.

Quality and regulation The issue of trainer qualifications raises further concerns. In several centres, instructors are graduates, or even less, with minimal training in language pedagogy and limited professional experience. Teaching a language is not just about speaking it but requires an understanding of how learners acquire language, how errors can be addressed, and how communicative competence can be developed.

This situation bears an unsettling resemblance to the phenomenon of pseudo-medical practitioners who, without proper qualifications, work in clinics or set-up their own practice. Reports of such cases frequently appear in the news, raising serious questions about public safety and professional standards. While the consequences in language education may not be as immediately visible, the long-term impact on learners' confidence and competence can be significant.

It would, however, be unfair to dismiss all spoken English centres. For many learners, especially those who hesitate to speak, these spaces provide an initial platform to overcome fear and build confidence. The concern lies not in their existence but in the methods they employ and the expectations they create.

Given the increasing importance of English in education, employment, and everyday communication, there is a need to view language training as a serious and responsible enterprise. Regulatory oversight could help ensure that centres maintain basic standards. Fluency cannot be packaged, priced, and delivered within a fixed duration. It is cultivated over time, through consistent practice, meaningful exposure, and intellectual engagement.

Indian Railways Approves 1,364 Crore Safety Overhaul: Kavach, Signaling Upgrades

New Delhi, 6/4(H.S.):The Railway Ministry greenlit projects worth ₹1,364.45 crore on Monday to bolster train safety, modernize signaling systems, and strengthen communication networks across key zones. A flagship initiative installs Kavach Version 4.0—the indigenous anti-collision system—on 232 Southern Railway locomotives at ₹208.81 crore, positioned as a game-changer preventing train collisions through automatic braking. Northern Railway secures ₹400.86 crore for upgrading optical fiber communication (OFC) over 3,200+ route km, enhancing signaling reliability and Kavach efficacy. North Central Railway gets ₹176.76 crore for 2x48 fiber OFC across 2,196 route km on high-density routes, fortifying communication resilience. South Central Railway allocates ₹578.02 crore to convert panel interlocking to electronic systems at 49 stations, minimizing manual errors for safer, more efficient operations. These initiatives form part of Railways' comprehensive upgrade strategy targeting elevated safety, capacity, and operational efficiency. Enhanced Kavach rollout and signaling promise significantly safer passenger journeys ahead.

NCERT Book Authors Blacklisted Over Judiciary Corruption Chapter Seek Supreme Court Relief

New Delhi, 6/4(H.S.):Three academics blacklisted by the Supreme Court for authoring a controversial Class 8 NCERT textbook chapter on judicial corruption have approached the apex court seeking removal of adverse observations against them. On March 8, a bench led by Chief Justice Suryakant—having taken suo motu cognizance of the "Exploring Society: India and Beyond" textbook's content—ordered Professors Michel Danino, Suparna Diwakar, and Alok Prasanna Kumar disassociated from government-funded work. The court condemned the chapter for deliberately fostering negative judicial perceptions among impressionable Class 8 students, questioning their knowledge or intent. The trio's lawyers mentioned their petitions before CJI Suryakant's bench, demanding listing post-curiae advisals. The court directed post-curative listing. Previously, it mandated NCERT and Centre to withdraw all physical/digital copies nationwide, deeming any circulation contemptuous. The February uproar followed media reports on the "Role of Judiciary" chapter citing corruption; NCERT withdrew it amid PM Modi's reported displeasure and Education Minister's regret. Court rejected initial apology as insincere, banned production/distribution, seized copies, and ordered syllabi board minutes probe—later forming an expert panel (ex-judge, academician, lawyer) to vet revisions.

Seven Foreigners Remanded to 30-Day Judicial Custody in Northeast Training Case

New Delhi, 6/4(H.S.):Patiala House Court sent seven foreign nationals—six Ukrainians and one American—to 30 days' judicial custody, accused of entering India to train ethnic groups in the Northeast. Their NIA remand ended Monday, prompting court presentation. The court noted the foreigners illegally entered Myanmar via Mizoram's protected zones, contacting ethnic groups. Charges include supplying illegal arms, providing combat training, and drone operation assistance—linked to Indian insurgent outfits. Per NIA, they arrived on visas, bypassed Mizoram's Restricted Area Permit, infiltrated Myanmar for training, then reciprocated by arming/training ethnic warriors. A major drone shipment from Europe allegedly routed through India. FIR invoked multiple UAPA sections for conspiracy, terrorism facilitation.

Ample LPG Stocks in India, Avoid Panic Hoarding: Centre Appeals Amid Misinformation

New Delhi, 6/4 (H.S.):The central government urged citizens to ignore social media rumors on liquefied petroleum gas (LPG) and fuel shortages, affirming sufficient domestic reserves and advising need-based purchases only. Joint Secretary Sujata Sharma (Petroleum & Natural Gas Ministry) briefed at the National Media Centre that ~50 lakh cylinders sell daily, with 6.75 lakh small (5kg) units sold in the last 14 days. Sales hit 90,000 on April 4; no distributor reports stockouts. ~18 crore households received cylinders in five weeks. To meet rising demand, 5kg cylinders now require only ID proof—no address verification.

Politics is Nation Policy Path, Not Power Tool: BJP Chief Nitin Nabin

New Delhi, 6/4(H.S.):Bharatiya Janata Party national president Nitin Nabin hoisted the flag at party headquarters on its 47th Foundation Day, paying homage to Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee and Pandit Deen Dayal Upadhyaya. Addressing workers, Nitin Nabin declared: "Politics for us isn't a means to power but the path of nation policy (Rashtra Niti). Our journey hasn't been easy." Senior leaders and cadres attended the solemn event. Launching proceedings with the flag hoisting, Nabin recalled founders' achievements alongside past presidents. He urged strengthening organization and gearing up for upcoming elections. Embracing "Rashtra First" ideology, Nitin Nabin inspired crores of dedicated workers powering party growth.

"Thousands endured torture, sacrifice to reach here—Bengal, Kerala, J&K comrades offered supreme sacrifices. I bow to them today." With 14 crore members, BJP stands world's largest party—not mere numbers, but 1.4 billion Indians' unwavering faith. Under PM Narendra Modi's guidance, workers must dedicate to Viksit Bharat dream, elevating party to new peaks. Nitin Nabin called for a pledge: transform all lost seats to wins. This resolve will propel BJP forward.

Delhi High Court to Hear CBI's Plea Against Kejriwal Acquittal on April 13

New Delhi, 6/4April (H.S.):The Delhi High Court will hear the Central Bureau of Investigation's (CBI) challenge to the trial court's order discharging former Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal and 22 others in the Delhi excise scam case on April 13. The court directed CBI to respond to the accused's plea seeking Justice Swarn Kanta Sharma's recusal from hearing the matter. Kejriwal, present in court Monday, stated he would argue personally—after Chief Justice DK Upadhyay rejected his and Manish Sisodia's earlier letter seeking the same. On March 16, the court granted time for responses from all accused. Notices were issued March 9 after CBI appealed the discharge. The High Court had stayed trial court remarks criticizing CBI and barred further money laundering proceedings linked to the excise case.

BJP Mission Continues: Uniform Civil Code, 'One Nation One Election' Under Serious Debate, Says PM Modi

New Delhi, 6/4 (H.S.):On the Bharatiya Janata Party's 47th Foundation Day, Prime Minister Narendra Modi declared the party's mission far from complete despite major achievements in power, with Uniform Civil Code (UCC) and 'One Nation, One Election' sparking nationwide serious discourse. In a video message to party workers, Modi emphasized BJP's consistent prioritization of national interest. He expressed confidence that the party would continue confronting challenges with integrity, yielding positive outcomes as before. PM Modi listed transformative steps: scrapping hundreds of archaic British-era laws, constructing a new Parliament building to strengthen democracy, granting 10% reservation to economically weaker sections, criminalizing triple talaq, implementing Citizenship Amendment Act (CAA), and consecrating Ram Temple in Ayodhya. "BJP doesn't just promise—it delivers," he asserted. The party's goal remains building a developed, self-reliant India through selfless service. Modi urged workers to reinforce nation-service resolve, noting BJP uniquely inspires viewing the party as 'mother,' making Foundation Day emotionally significant. Recalling Jan Sangh founder Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee's sacrifice for Jammu & Kashmir's integration, Modi noted decades-long Article 370 challenge ended decisively by BJP. "Ek Bharat, Shreshth Bharat" drives initiatives like GST ('One Nation One Tax'), One Nation One Ration Card, One Nation One Grid—unifying economy and nation. Success stems from lakhs of workers' sacrifice, penance, dedication—understood only by those devoted to BJP values. RSS inspiration instilled clean intent; BJP evolved into robust cadre-based force. Amid Emergency repression and violence, workers persisted, many sacrificing lives. National Democratic Alliance (NDA) pioneered country-first coalition politics—not mere power grab, but national goals achievement. BJP consistently advances women in organization and governance, commitment ongoing. As BJP nears golden jubilee, Modi called workers to embrace new goals, adapt to technology, strengthen nation-building roles with fresh energy amid ongoing state elections.

Dwarka Crash Victim's Mother Seeks CBI Probe in High Court

New Delhi, 6/4 (H.S.):The mother of Sahil Dhanshra, killed in a February Dwarka road accident, petitioned the Delhi High Court for a Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) probe or court-monitored investigation by Delhi Police, alleging investigative lapses. Justice Saurabh Banerjee's bench will hear the matter today (April 6). The plea claims Delhi Police investigation serves the accused and accomplices to shield them. Petitioner states submitted evidence remains unverified. She challenges Juvenile Justice Board orders: the minor accused showed no remorse when produced February 4; granted bail February 10 without notice to family. Accused's father and associates allegedly influence proceedings. On February 3, Sahil rode a motorcycle when a high-speed SUV driven by a minor, collided violently, completely wrecking the bike. A second cab driver sustained grievous injuries.

Bastar Turns Development Focus Post-Naxal Eradication, Chhattisgarh CM Sai to Meet PM Tuesday

Chief Minister Vishnu Deo Sai will meet Prime Minister Narendra Modi in New Delhi on Tuesday. High-Level Consultations Official sources confirm Sai will also confer with Home Minister Amit Shah. The meetings hold strategic importance for Bastar's future trajectory. Discussions center on "post-Maoist scenario"—crafting rapid development roadmap after Maoist influence wanes. Security gains achieved, Centre-state collaboration now accelerates mainstream integration. Sai presents detailed plan emphasizing infrastructure expansion, industrial growth, investment attraction, youth employment, and inclusive tribal development. Government eyes Bastar as new development model balancing security, economy, social progress.

Supreme Court Orders CBI Probe Into Arunachal CM Pema Khandu's Contract Favoritism Allegations

New Delhi, 6/4 (H.S.):The Supreme Court directed the Central Bureau of Investigation to probe claims against Arunachal Pradesh Chief Minister Pema Khandu for awarding contracts to companies owned by his relatives. A bench led by Justice Vikram Nath issued the order. The court mandated CBI commence investigation within two weeks, covering contracts from January 2015 to December 2025. The verdict was reserved February 17; notices went to Home and Finance Ministries March 18, 2025. Counsel Prashant Bhushan argued state plunder: CM's wife and nephew's firms secured ~70 contracts worth thousands of crores, breaching Prevention of Corruption Act and ministerial conduct rules. State counsel dismissed the PIL as politically motivated abuse of law process.

Lumbini Lawmakers Urge PM Balen Shah to Seek India's Aid for Bhairahawa Airport Operations

Kathmandu, 6/4 (H.S.): Lawmakers from Lumbini Province urged Prime Minister Balendra Shah on Monday to immediately seek assistance from the Indian government to operationalize Gautam Buddha International Airport in Bhairahawa, located near the Indian border. During a meeting with directly elected House of Representatives members from Lumbini, Nepali Communist Party leader and parliamentarian Yamnath Pun (also known as Barshaman Pun) proposed urgent collaboration with India. He stressed expediting airport operations, advocating swift diplomatic engagement on air routes for international flights without further delay. Pun called for establishing a labor desk at Bhairahawa to regularize international flights and unlock tourism potential, a suggestion endorsed by all attending MPs. They expressed concern over the airport's non-operation five years post-construction, insisting no alternative exists to diplomatic initiatives with India for this border-proximate facility. Prime Minister Shah assured the lawmakers he would promptly direct the Foreign Ministry and Civil Aviation Authority to initiate diplomatic talks with India on the matter.

Only India, Russia, China Hold Power to Halt West Asia War: US Economist Jeffrey Sachs

Moscow, 6/4 (H.S.): Jeffrey Sachs, American economist and Director of Columbia University's Center for Sustainable Development, asserts that only three global leaders—India's PM Narendra Modi, China's President Xi Jinping, and Russia's President Vladimir Putin—possess the capacity to de-escalate rising Iran tensions. In Russia Today's "New Order" program, Sachs warned that without joint intervention by these powers, the West Asia crisis risks morphing into global instability. He urged them to convince US President Donald Trump to end the conflict, emphasizing BRICS nations' (Brazil, Russia, India, China, South Africa) decisive role, as India currently chairs the bloc. Sachs highlighted perils of prolonged conflict: Iranian retaliation to potential US bombing, economic fallout for Global South, and Trump's miscalculation of war costs. He accused segments of Israeli leadership of harboring a "6th century BCE mindset" and dismissed Pakistan's mediation claims, insisting BRICS alone can broker peace. Praising India's stature to reject "American delusions," Sachs recommended collective action with BRICS partners, leveraging New Delhi's historic Iran ties for mediation. He cautioned India against aligning with Israel post-Gaza and labeled Western nations as US "vassal states," urging autonomy.

Iran Rejects US Ultimatum, Vows to Keep Strait of Hormuz Closed

Tehran, 6/4 (H.S.): Amid escalating tensions in the war-torn Middle East, Iran has firmly dismissed a stern warning from US President Donald Trump demanding the reopening of the Strait of Hormuz by Tuesday, heightening fears of broader conflict. Tehran rejected the ultimatum outright, branding Trump as "helpless" and "panicked," while asserting that it fears no threats and will not yield the strategic waterway. Iranian officials declared that the strait remains closed, daring adversaries to act as they see fit. According to Al Jazeera reports, Iran's central military command categorically dismissed Trump's 48-hour deadline, in which he threatened to devastate the country's critical infrastructure—such as power plants—if no peace agreement is reached and the strait is not reopened. Trump warned that failure to comply would unleash calamity on Iran. Foreign Ministry spokesperson Ismail Baghaei emphasized that Trump's threats do not intimidate the Iranian people, who possess all necessary means for self-defense. He added that Iran has proven its resolve since the war's outset, promising reciprocal retaliation against any strikes on civilian infrastructure, particularly power facilities. The channel further noted ongoing Israeli and US attacks on Iranian civilian and petrochemical sites, which have killed at least five people, including one in a strike on the Bushehr nuclear facility.

US-Israel Launch Intense Strikes on Iran After Hormuz Deadline Rejection, 34 Killed

Tehran/Tel Aviv/Washington, 6/4 (H.S.): Rejecting Washington's ultimatum to reopen the Strait of Hormuz by Tuesday, Iran faced relentless US-Israeli airstrikes launched after the February 28 integrated military campaign escalated West Asia's crisis. The attacks killed 34 people overnight. Iran responded with missile barrages on Israel and Gulf Arab states. President Donald Trump had warned of obliterating Iran's power plants if unmet; Tehran dismissed threats, vowing fitting retaliation. Al Jazeera reported continuous explosions over Tehran, fighter jets roaring low, striking Sharif University of Technology near Azadi Square. In Haifa, an Iranian missile hit a residential building, killing two with two missing; fresh strikes hit early Monday. Kuwait and UAE activated air defenses against Iranian missiles/drones. Attacks targeted Kuwaiti power/water/desalination/oil plants, Bahrain oil facility, Iraq's Sulaymaniyah via drone, and Iranian Kurdish militant bases in northern Iraq. Iran struck UAE telecom DU building (no injuries), Beersheba (sirens blared), Saudi downed two drones; Israel bombed Lebanon's Kfar Rumman, killing four in a car. Trump reiterated Tuesday strikes on bridges/power plants if Hormuz stays shut; Pentagon reports 365 US troops injured. Sharif University largely destroyed alongside hospitals, schools, oil/steel facilities in Karaj, Shiraz, Isfahan, Bushehr; Bandar-e-Lengeh (6 dead), Qom (5 dead), Tehran's Baharestan (13 dead)—total 34 fatalities. Iran hanged suspect Ali Fahim for January military intrusion attempt amid 1979 Revolution's bloodiest unrest.

Trump Reveals Precise Strike Timing on Iran in Unprecedented Truth Social Post

Washington, 6/4 (H.S.): US President Donald Trump has ignited global alarm by publicly disclosing what many interpret as the exact timing for potential American strikes on Iran's critical civilian infrastructure, should Tehran refuse to reopen the Strait of Hormuz for international shipping. In a Sunday evening post on his Truth Social platform dated April 5 at approximately 8:00 PM Eastern Time, Trump stated simply: "Tuesday, 8:00 PM Eastern Time!" Analysts view this as either a revised deadline for Iran to comply or a direct signal of impending military action, marking an extraordinary departure from conventional warfare protocol where operational secrecy is paramount. The provocative message follows Trump's expletive laced threats earlier that day, vowing to obliterate Iran's power plants, bridges, and other vital assets if no peace deal emerges within 48 hours. It comes amid the dramatic rescue of a US Air Force weapons systems officer whose F-15E Strike Eagle was downed over Iranian territory, further straining relations in the ongoing Middle East conflict.

Alexander Leonov, Lead Designer of Zircon Hypersonic Missile and BrahMos Programme Passes Away at 74

Moscow/New Delhi, 6/4 (H.S.): Renowned Russian missile designer Alexander Leonov, widely credited as a key architect of the hypersonic Zircon cruise missile and the Indo-Russian BrahMos programme, has died at the age of 74, according to Russian state-linked reports and defence-industry sources. His death marks the loss of one of Moscow's most influential hypersonic-weapons engineers at a time when advanced cruise- and ballistic-missile systems are central to Russia's global-power posture. Role in Zircon and BrahMos Leonov served as CEO and Chief Designer of NPO Mashinostroyeniya (NPO Mash), the Russian state-owned company that is the principal Russian partner in BrahMos Aerospace, the New Delhi-based joint venture developing the BrahMos and BrahMos-NG supersonic and hypersonic cruise missiles. Within this framework, he oversaw successive generations of the BrahMos family, including the new-generation BrahMos-NG, which is being engineered for smaller platforms, reduced radar signature, and enhanced range. Beyond BrahMos, he is most closely associated with the 3M22 Zircon (Tsirkon) hypersonic cruise missile, a ship- and submarine-launched system capable of reaching speeds up to Mach 9—roughly nine times the speed of sound—and striking maritime and land targets at ranges commonly assessed between about 400 and 1,000 km, depending on trajectory and altitude. Russian media describe Zircon as a cornerstone of Moscow's naval and coastal-strike capability, designed to outmanoeuvre existing missile-defence architectures. Broader contributions to Russian defence under Leonov's leadership, NPO

Mashinostroyeniya also played a central role in other major Russian missile and space-related systems, including the Granit and Bastion coastal-defence complexes, which employ the Oniks (Yakhont) cruise missile that forms the basis of the Indian-Russian BrahMos design lineage. Open-source defence analyses note that his bureau contributed to the combat-equipment elements of the Avangard hypersonic glide-vehicle system and to radar-surveillance satellites, underscoring his impact across both missile and space domains. Leonov was decorated with the title "Hero of Labour" in 2019, Russia's highest civilian honour, in recognition of his contributions to missile- and space-system design. Russian agencies describe him as a pivotal figure in modernising Russia's conventional and strategic-strike capabilities over the past three decades, particularly in the shift from traditional cruise-missile architectures toward hypersonic platforms. Circumstances and legacy The exact place and cause of Leonov's death have not been formally disclosed by his employer or by official Russian channels, although several Russian-language outlets place his passing in early April 2026. International defence analysts stress that his work on Zircon and BrahMos-NG will continue to shape not only Russia's and India's arsenals, but also the calculus of naval and coastal-defence planning in the Indo-Pacific and European theatres. As hypersonic technology becomes a critical vector in global strategic competition, the death of an architect like Alexander Leonov underscores the enduring importance of individual designers in determining the character and reach of next-generation missile systems.

Bernie Sanders Slams Trump's Iran Remarks as 'Dangerous and Unbalanced'

Washington, 6/7 (H.S.): As tensions between the United States and Iran intensify over the Strait of Hormuz dispute, political rhetoric in America has sharpened, with Democratic Senator Bernie Sanders launching a fierce critique of President Donald Trump's recent statements. In a post on the social media platform X, Sanders condemned Trump's remarks as "dangerous and unbalanced," noting their timing on Easter Sunday as particularly alarming. He warned that such aggressive language risks escalating global tensions and worsening the already volatile situation in the Middle East. Sanders urged restraint and diplomacy over belligerent posturing, calling on Congress to intervene immediately with concrete steps to avert war. "This is a time for restraint and diplomacy, not aggressive rhetoric," he emphasized. The exchange underscores deepening rifts within US politics amid the Iran crisis, particularly surrounding the Hormuz Strait standoff. Analysts suggest these pointed political barbs could influence both America's foreign policy trajectory and regional dynamics in the coming days.

Pope Leo XIV's Easter Urbi et Orbi Message Calls for Peace Through Dialogue Amid Middle East Tension

Vatican City, : Pope Leo XIV on Sunday delivered a powerful call for global peace, urging nations and leaders to renounce violence and choose dialogue over domination amidst the ongoing conflict in West Asia. In his poignant Urbi et Orbi Easter message from Saint Peter's Basilica, the Pontiff appealed for an end to the indifference that has allowed suffering and bloodshed to continue unabated. "Let those who have weapons lay them down! Let those who have the power to wage war choose peace!" the Pope declared. "Not a peace enforced by force, but a peace achieved through dialogue! Not one based on domination, but on mutual encounter and understanding." Reflecting on the significance of Christ's resurrection, Pope Leo XIV emphasized the triumph of life over death, light over darkness, and love over hatred. He spoke of the resurrection of Jesus Christ as a beacon of Christian hope and an embodiment of non-violent strength, rooted in God's boundless love. "The resurrection of Christ marks the beginning of a new humanity; it opens the path to the true promised land, where justice, freedom, and peace reign. It is a place where all recognize one another as brothers and sisters, children of the same Father—who is Love, Life, and Light," the Pope said.

Crude Oil Prices Surge Past $115/ Barrel Amid West Asia Crisis

New Delhi, 6/4(H.S.):Crude oil prices climbed above $115 per barrel on Monday amid escalating West Asia tensions, straining household budgets as international benchmarks hit fresh highs. Brent crude futures rose $1.71 (1.6%) to $110.74 per barrel during trading. West Texas Intermediate (WTI) crude exceeded $115 per barrel, driven by supply disruptions from shipping issues in key Middle East oil-producing regions. An HSBC report cautioned sustained prices above $100/barrel could trigger severe fallout, potentially pushing inflation beyond 6%. Higher inflation would raise costs for food, electricity, transport, and daily essentials, directly hitting consumers. Price rally followed US President Donald Trump's ultimatum to Iran—demanding Strait of Hormuz reopening by Tuesday 8 PM—or face strikes on power plants. Petrol/diesel demand spans agriculture, transport, factories, power generation; disruptions exacerbate economic pressures.
